

What Did We Do?

Co-design workshops

We brought together:

10
+

- Service providers
- Community members
- Researchers

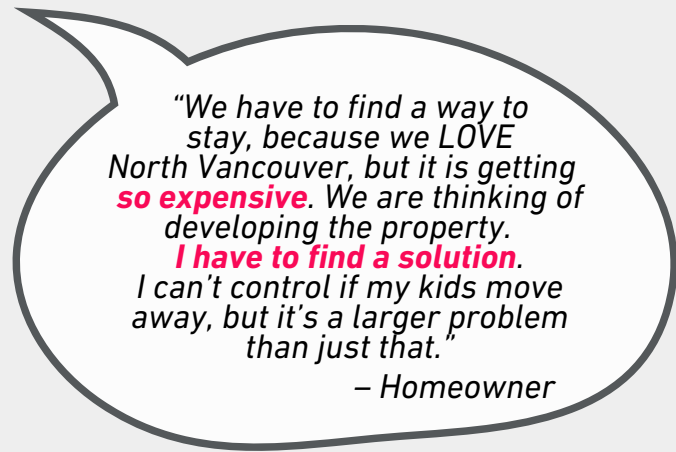

27

- North Shore homeowners aged 55+

To discuss:

- Support to begin home-sharing
- Coach homes
- Options for secondary suites

In a series of three co-design workshops, we explored the minimum requirements for programs to be feasible and attractive to homeowners.

Visioning a Future Program

Wants...

To stay in their homes as long as possible as they age

Communities that are vibrant, multigenerational and multiracial

Access to spaces that promote social connection and interaction, such as gardens or community centres

Digital and physical spaces where interest groups can meet

Increased transportation and accessibility to maintain mobility

Relief from increased density through traffic calming, infrastructure investment and higher-quality public transport

Concerns...

Receptiveness of neighbours

Parking management

Zoning restrictions (especially secondary suites and coach homes)

Navigating approvals process

Local laws preventing small businesses from being in the area

Affordability for owners and renters

Effective social context integration (such as the participant's extended family)

Accessibility of homes for aging

"We want vibrant communities! Young families, youthful energy, kids..."

- Homeowner

Key Program Components

Key Recommendations from Homeowners

- 1 A resource person who can help homeowners navigate is crucial
- 2 Forgivable loans can help with financial barriers (e.g., tax breaks if renting to lower income)
- 3 Municipalities can provide more clarity about regulations and available support

What Would Homeowners Need to Say Yes To a Program?

Homesharing

- Clear, understandable process
- Zoning and construction regulation clarity
- Vetting system and screening process
- Short-term tenancy options
- Options to include restrictions on tenant overnight guests

Secondary Suites

- Loan to develop secondary suite
- Advocate for senior landlords
- External organization to manage suite (with minimal cost to renter or homeowner)
- Financial support
- Incentives to look beyond short term rental options
- Liability explanations

Coach Homes

- Low interest loans
- More social participation (community investment, action, connection + care to neighbourhood)
- Tax exemptions, rebates or exemptions
- Education around homesharing

"One thing I think about with wanting to rent to a senior is that I have stairs and I'm worried about the liability. What if they fall down the stairs and sue me?"

- Homeowner

"I'm just glad groups like you are doing this and finding solutions. This is a very well thought-out, engaging, and well-rounded workshop. I feel more engaged."

- Homeowner

Next Steps

This fall we'll host an open house with many draft prototypes for the North Shore community to explore, discuss and suggest improvements.

All are welcome.
